When you set goals and achieve them, it can be a tremendous boost to your self-esteem. You will feel confident and secure in your abilities as you see your visions become reality. If you shoot for nothing you will hit it every time. Sitting around focusing on everything that you are not will never boost your self-esteem. Set some goals and take small steps toward accomplishing them. You will be amazed at how much this can help you overcome your insecurity problem. You may only be able to take baby steps, but as long as you are moving forward, you will overcome insecurity issues. -Do you fear losing the person you are intimately involved with because of your insecurity issues? How does your partner feel about your insecurities? One of the things I had to come to grips with in my life is that there are no certainties in any relationship, whether you are married or not. Its important to discuss your insecurity problem with your boyfriend, girlfriend or spouse. If you are being reasonable and your partner is unwilling to work with you, consider going to counseling together. If your partner truly wants things to work out, they will work with you. Remember, it takes work to overcome your insecurities. Sometimes we have to be vulnerable with others in order to overcome our struggles. As you can see, the author, Ryan Help, in his book, Insecurity: How To Overcome Social Anxiety, Relationship Jealousy and Stop Feeling Insecure, gives straight forward advice on how to stop feeling insecure. You wont be wasting your time reading through a bunch of senseless ramblings. No! The ideas in this book are presented in such a way that you can start overcoming insecurity today!
